

JARED LATIGO

The Dream

We all have a dream inside of us.

Some of us act on it more than others, some of us sooner than others.

But what would happen if we all followed that plan?

I'm going to go out on a limb here and suggest that no work would be left undone and overall, people would be much more joyful in life.

In fact, all work would be done better and more efficiently because we'd all be working in our strengths. And when we work in our strengths, we feel better and do better because we simply are better.

But we don't.

Many people toil away at jobs they hate in hopes of someday retiring and it all being peachy.

The problem is, the days of a company handing you retirement are no more. Maybe for the next 15 years or so, but anytime after that, good luck.

Retirement should not be the “end goal”...
it should be a goal.

Our culture has changed.

Our economy has changed.

We are out of the industrial age.

But this manifesto isn't about retirement.

This is about work, now.

Volunteering, now.

Living, now.

I Have A Dream

Yes, I know that's been said, but nothing else makes sense for what I'm about to say.

I have a dream that one day there will be a massive amount of people working in their strengths and contributing to the betterment of society.

That one day, these people will not hate their jobs, but love them.

That loving going to work will not be the exception, but the norm.

We are living in a time, a day and age, where work does not have to be given, but can be taken.

No longer are there gatekeepers who force us to put in a specific number of years or hours in order to proceed into a better lifestyle.

There are no boundaries on what we can do.

However, we must remember why we are doing it.

Without a clear sense of why we are headed in a particular direction, we will fail.

There is a calling deep within each of us that drives us beyond what we can explain with words.

That is our WHY.

What Passion Really Is

The interesting thing about passion is that it's not the "end goal." The "end goal" is our dream. This dream is where we are headed and passion is what we use on a daily basis to drive us.

But when we get there, we will always be able to see farther.

Without this dream, we feel incomplete.

And we can truly achieve little.

A dream helps define our purpose on this planet.

It's what guides us through life.

But this world is not the end.

Our dream is simply a tiny portion of a much larger picture that we cannot see until this life is over.

Each of our lives, when put together, creates a magnificent symphony...

for God.

This dream you have.

This dream I have.

It's not about us.

It's about something much larger.

Something beyond this world.

It's also about others.

People we know.

And people we don't.

Our lives are all interconnected and therefore,
our dreams are as well.

Your Call

We must act on this.

There is no other option.

Our lack of effort in achieving what has been laid before us is a disservice to those around us.

We are not called to be perfect.

We are not called to know precisely where it is we're headed.

Trials and opportunities will come our way that will redirect us.

They will shape us. Steer us. Guide us.

Change us.

We are called to head in the direction of our dream.

You head toward yours.

I'll head to mine.

We'll meet along the way, somewhere.

I urge you to find your place in this world.

Use your passions. Pursue your dream.

Fulfill your purpose.

Create symphony.

So are you ready?

There's no turning back; only running forward.

Join us at JaredLatigo.com/workinsymphony

Share your story and connect with other people ready to work in symphony!

Commit with a tweet:

Today I begin to WORK IN SYMPHONY! Are you?
JaredLatigo.com/symphony #workinsymphony

Tweet this!

Hey there! I'm Jared Latigo, a writer, speaker and passion guy.

I urge you to take this to heart. Show us what you've got!

Work In Symphony!

Connect at:

JaredLatigo.com

Twitter: @JaredLatigo

Jared@JaredLatigo.com

